LOSS FULLY $3,000

On Horses Alone, at Fire in Luther M. Keith's Stables-Origin of Fire Still Unaccounted For.

Selectman Luther M. Keith, who sustained a serious loss when his livery stable was destroyed by fire Tuesday night, was up and doing Wednesday and taking care of his business interconsidering that all of his horses, his vehicles and other equipment were destroyed in a blaze, the origin of which remains unknown.

At 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, within a few hours after the fire had been extinguished. Mr. Keith had a working organization and was taking orders and doing business much after the order of his usual routine. During the day he made his headquarters in the Daymort hadding the day he made his headquarters in the Davenport building until recently occupied by Kennedy's stable, which building is next to the one destroyed, and managed to take care of the de-mands for service that came to him. Nothing was done during Wednes-day toward clearing away the wreck-age of the burned stable, but after nightfall some of the eleven horses that met death in the basement of the met death in the basement of the building, where the stalls were located. building, where the stails were located, were removed and taken to a point near what is known as the long railroad bridge and buried in a big excavation that had been made during the day. Most of the animals were burned to a crisp. One of these horses was the property of John Lavelle, foreman of the stable, another belonged to Dr. N. Darling. The other horses were the property of Mr. Keith. The loss on the horses is estimated at close the horses is estimated at close $3,000

The Rhode Island company, which made the Keith stable its headquarters for storage in this city on freight shipments, sustained a loss in the fire, several consignments that had not been delivered going up in smoke.

A favorite theory as to the cause of the fire as talked on Wednesday is that it may have been caused by someone who went around to the rear of the building late in the evening and care-lessly threw down a cigarette butt or a lighted match in such a way as to start the fire, but this is all conjec-ture. There was no one in the barn at the time the fire must have started the night watchman, Henry Jodoin, be-ing on his way there from the Providence street section of the city when the fire broke out.

An inspection of the site of the fire An inspection of the site of the fire Wednesday brought home even a more complete realization than was first the case that the fire department did one of the best jobs in years when its members succeeded in confining the fire, practically, to the Keith stable. The north side of the Hoyle building is quite badly charred, the nearest Davenport building slightly so. Effective work and fine water pressure, however, allowed the department to save this building from destruction after it at one time had looked as if they were building from destruction after it at one time had looked as if they were doomed to go.

BALLOON MAN TESTIFIES

n Case of Bernier vs. Woodstock Agricultural Society-Had Ordered Boys Not to Touch the Ropes-Arguments Begun Wednesday.

The trial of the case of Joseph George Bernler, admr., vs. the Wood-stock Agricultural society was resumed before Judge Shumway and a jury in the superior court here Wednesday morning.
The first witness was Attorney M.

II. Geissier who stated that the Jan-dreau boy told him right after the ac-

Mr. Flower, the man who furnish the ascension, was the principal wit-ness. He told of the manner in which the preparation is made and said that the balloon was held down by stakes and not by boys. That boys were asked to hold the canvas out while it was filling so as tokeep it away from the fire. He said he had trouble keeping the boy that was carried up back. He the boy that was carried up back. He told him continually to get back and once swore at him. He picked up rope ends and carried them in close to the balloon. He had been in the business is years and had never had a bystander injured before. He said that putting up a balloon was not dangerous to the crowd if they kept back as told. The boy had his hands on the rope when the balloon went up.

He was not cross-examined. After some witnesses were put on for one or two questions in rebuttal, counsel rested. Just before the close Mrs. Bernier was put on the stand and identified the coat worn by her son and broke into tears.

David E. Clark, of Putnam Heights, told as a witness that he had heard the ballochist order the boys to let go. He said the Bernier boy was holding the rope with both hands.

When the defence rested Earl Johnson, a witness on the plaintiff's side, was recalled to the stand, and contradicted some of the statements made by Mr. Flower. The first arguments in the case were made at the afternoon session by Attorney Morse for the plaintiff and by Mr. Searls for the defendant society. This (Thursday) morning the closing arguments will be made followed by the charge of the court to the jury, which may get the case by early afternoon
